A story of YEOMAN SERVICE)

. . . WHEN LAND WENT TO WAR In 1939, as in bygone days, Britain called to her Yeomen .*. . and once again they rallied to the call—their weapons, tractors and ploughshares. Like their comrades who battled overseas, our Yeomen formed an Army—an Army of the Land. This Army of Yeomen, mechanised with tractors instead of tanks, wrested from this country's soil over 21 million extra tons of crops so that Britain might est—and fight—and win.

The war is over. The fight for food goes on. Again Britain looks to her mechanised Army of Yeomen. They triumphed before . . . they will triumph again.
